Associate in Theology and Biblical Studies

Program Description

The Theology and Biblical Studies program offers students a comprehensive introduction to the academic study of Scripture, the fundamental doctrines of Christianity, and ministry leadership. Designed for those seeking personal spiritual growth or preparation for entry-level ministry roles in churches, nonprofit ministries, or missions, this degree equips students to interpret the Bible, critically analyze theological ideas, and cultivate a vibrant devotional life rooted in biblical truth.

Program Objective

The Theology and Biblical Studies program aims to provide students with a solid academic and spiritual foundation in the study of Scripture, Christian theology, and ministry practice. This degree is designed to develop theological literacy, critical thinking, and practical application in students seeking entry-level ministry roles, pursuing higher education, or strengthening their personal spiritual development.

The program equips students to interpret the Bible responsibly, engage with theological traditions with discernment, and articulate their faith clearly in diverse ministerial and cultural contexts. By integrating spiritual formation with academic research, the associate degree prepares students to serve faithfully in local churches, missions, chaplaincy, or to pursue theological studies at the bachelor's degree level.
